VISUAL ART

Thru December 1. Ana Phelps. Sand Art/Tide Design. Photography. Nature etches its own designs and forms on the sand by the flow of tides and waves. Each form is unique and will be gone forever with the next tide. "My intent is to capture as many shapes on the sand before the next tide, and invite you to figure them out with your own subjective interpretation. I see angels, fish, princess and queens. What do you see?" Encinitas Community Center Gallery, 1140 Oakcrest Park Drive. 760-943-2260. www.anaphelpsp photography.com

Thru December 1. StoryArts, Inc, Hidden Treasures, Encinitas Community Project. Book Art. Hidden Treasures is a community arts project pairing five Encinitas artists with five Encinitas hidden leaders. Each artist created a three dimensional book art portrait depicting their partner's leadership in Encinitas. Encinitas Community Center Gallery, 1140 Oakcrest Park Drive. 760-943-2260. <http://www.storyartsinc.org>

Thru December 1. Lily Pourat, Under the Sea. Ceramic, Glass. Utilizing the movement of the ocean as a metaphor for the essence of the human spirit, the rocking waves and curvature of the pieces represent the opportunities and challenges we face in our day-to-day life. I seek to represent the tenacity and resilience of the human spirit as we travel through these experiences, often like a stormy sea, which ultimately shape our character. Encinitas Community Center Gallery, 1140 Oakcrest Park Drive. 760-943-2260. <https://lilythepotter.wordpress.com>

Thru December 6. Amy Shamansky, A Colorful Life. Acrylic and Charcoal on Canvas. Layers of color and texture create a world of animal images that uniquely capture a vibrant, meaningful life. "I want to capture the beauty of the animal world. I'm a process painter, letting my playfulness on the canvas direct the emergence of its subject." Encinitas Library Gallery, 540 Cornish Drive. 760-753-7376. <http://amyshamansky.com>

Thru December 31. Bob Hord, Life Amongst the Robots. Mixed Media. Having a solid background as a commercial illustrator, Bob uses artistic skill and creativity to develop and design work depicting ordinary events and situations in a world when the robots finally take over. Cardiff Library, 2081 Newcastle Avenue. 760-753-4027. <https://www.facebook.com/bob.hord.7>

Thru January 7, 2017. Xawery Wolski. Mixed Media. A collection of magnificent beaded artworks. Each piece is hand-constructed, fired, and then meticulously painted, all strung together by sturdy thread to create a sculptural piece in the shape of a dress. IN STUDIO: 11/5-12/17. Lux Art Institute, 1550 S. El Camino Real. 760-436-6611. www.luxartinstitute.org

Dec. 6 – Jan. 10, 2017. Jorge Garza, Impressions. Oil, Acrylic, Glass. Painting provides me complete freedom from constraints. The progression of a painting is unpredictable and sometimes the canvas talks to you. This freedom is exhilarating and you have to look within your soul, not with your eyes. At this precise instant, a piece of art is born. Encinitas Library Gallery, 540 Cornish Drive. 760-753-7376 www.theartfussion.com/

Dec. 6 – Jan. 10, 2017. Moni Blom, It's the Little Things in Life. Stone Sculpture and Glass. Contemporary in style, cartoony in color, these ceramic works broadcast playfulness and joy in an abstract way. Seeing all that is positive and possible requires a certain sort of mental discipline and these sculptures are reminders to do just that. Enjoy as much as you can as often as is possible. Encinitas Library Gallery, 540 Cornish Drive. 760-753-7376 www.moniblom.com/

Thru Jan. 11, 2017. Yolande Snaith, Caught in Motion. Acrylic. "I developed a process of drawing figures in motion where I keep my pencil on the page continuously whilst following lines of movement. The resulting sketches reveal traces of movement in space, a visual map of physical spontaneity." Encinitas Civic Center Gallery, City Hall, 505 S Vulcan Avenue. RECEPTION: Dec. 9, 6-8pm. Encinitas City Hall Gallery, 505 S Vulcan Ave. 760-633-2600. www.yolandesnaith.com

Dec. 5-Jan. 11, 2017. Alex Long, The Art of Raku. Pottery. Trained in production pottery, his passion for clay has led him to make one-of-a-kind pieces in Raku from small to monumental in size. Over the past 26 years, he has perfected this firing process that creates beautiful, one of a kind art pieces. Encinitas Civic Center Gallery, City Hall, 505 S Vulcan Avenue. 760-633-2600. www.alexlongart.com/

Thru January 12, 2017. Maria De Castro, Avian Influence. Ceramic. The anthropomorphic figures explore the relationship of humanity and nature to current environmental issues such as global warming, resource depletion, overpopulation, and loss of habitat. Establishing a dialogue between man and animal will hopefully generate an understanding of the intrinsic nature of our Earth and what we as responsible citizens. Encinitas Community Center Gallery, 1140 Oakcrest Park Drive. 760-943-2260. www.mariadecastro.com

Thru Jan. 12, 2017. Patric Stillman, Studio Door, A Day at the Beach. Oil and Acrylic. All of the artists have working studios at The Studio Door.
